

Legal Matters

Only the owner of www.firearm.ch holds the copyright of the content, the idea, the set up of www.firearms.ch and the accessory slide shows and documents. The content (slides or documents) may be used for private use, but not business purposes, as long as there are no restrictions mentioned in the website.

Before adding a link to the website www.firearm.ch, the owner thoroughly checked out the content of these links to make sure that they correspond to legal stipulations. However, he renounces all liability for the content of such other websites. These will be held responsible for their own content.

Not the owner, but the user of content from the website www.firearm.ch is held responsible for any damage caused by the application of all or part of its content.

The user of directions from www.firearm.ch is held responsible for adhering to the regulations about arms, security, and authenticity as well as other legal regulations. The owner of www.firearm.ch renounces all liability in these matters. As well, the owner of www.firearm.ch renounces any liability for the misuse of arms which were restored, changed or reconstructed according to directions from the website. The user is responsible for adhering to existing arms regulations.

The owner of www.firearm.ch assumes that the user of directions from www.firearm.ch will inform honestly any owner or buyer or a person requesting restoration or reconstruction of a weapon as to the condition of the weapon as far as authenticity, status of restoration as well as the suitability for shooting goes.